ELOPED WITH THE COACHMAN.

ROMANCE OF A RICH AND PRETTY NEW YORK GIRL.

THOUGHT TO BE IN ST. LOUIS.

Minerva Meinert Loved Herbert McGlynn, Her Father's Coachman, and Ran Away With Him.

Minerva Meinert is wanted by her father. He has visited Chief Harrigan in an effort to find her. He has also left an advertisement in the different newspaper offices.

The disappearance of the young lady carries with it the narration of a series of incidents so strange that they seem impossible, but for all that the father stands willing to vouch. The climax was reached in her elopement with her father's coachman.

John Meinert, the father of the missing girl, is the possessor of a handsome home, and a magnificent estate near White Plains, in Westchester County, New York. It is back from the Hudson and adjoins the home of Whitelaw Reid.

Mr. Meinert, who arrived in this city Friday, is the guest of a nephew, Arthur W. Hendig, at 215 Lynch street.

He was a closeted caller on Chief Harrigan for two hours Friday afternoon and for about fifteen minutes yesterday evening.

These consultations, interviews or whatever they might be called, were very secret. Outsiders were excluded. Reporters were barred from the office and political callers were informed that the executive was very busy.

Mr. Meinert Friday afternoon presented to Chief Harrigan a photograph of his daughter, a sweet young girl of 18 years.

The coachman, Herbert McGlynn, is supposed to be in St. Louis and the young lady is here with him. Whether they are married or not Mr. Meinert does not know, but he would rather believe they were than not.

Mr. Meinert was stopped in the big corridor of the Four Courts Friday by a Post-Dispatch reporter, but then he declined to speak of the matter he has discussed with the Chief.

Saturday evening he was seen again and then he was more communicative.

"I want my daughter and if you can get her before the police can, so much the better," was Mr. Meinert's declaration.

He has pure white side whiskers, a florid, fat face that rests on a neck that is thick and heavy. He is heavy himself and short and thick. He is the cartooned picture of a Wall street banker.

"It was the night of July 13," he went on in explaining the circumstances of the elopement. "My wife and I retired early. It was warm and we were tired so we ordered all the lights in the house turned out and lay down."

"Minerva went out for a drive through the downy country roads that afternoon and said

The man with SMALL income, who PAYS BIG interest and taxes.

The man with GREAT income, who RECEIVES BIG interest and pays small taxes.

REPUBLICAN IDEA OF FINANCE.

Opposed to Income Tax, but Interest Must Be Paid In Gold.

FRYING THE FAT.

Hanna Squeezing Wall Street for Campaign Funds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Mark Hanna's work of raising campaign funds is succeeding beyond his most sanguine expectations. Already he has received more money in New York or promises, which are just as good—than was raised in New York for the Blaine campaign in 1884, and the two Harrison campaigns put together, according to a wealthy Republican who has been in frequent consultation with Mr. Hanna since he has been here. According to this authority Mr. Hanna is using the income tax plank of the Democratic platform as the lever by which he will raise campaign funds.

He tells the capitalists that in case of Mr. Bryan's election another income tax law will be passed, and there might be such changes in the personnel of the Supreme Court that the constitutionality of the law would be established. Should McKinley be elected there would be no likelihood of an income tax. The basis of assessment is the amount of tax the law of 1894 would have cost them. Of course, many McKinleys are willing to be more liberal than Mr. Hanna asks. Capitalists who formerly belonged to the Democratic party are also being asked by Mr. Hanna to subscribe upon the same basis. A Democrat who is at the head of one of the largest corporations in the country said the other day that he had received such a request from the Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and that he intended to comply with it.

BRYAN MAY COME.

Democratic Candidate Writes to the St. Louis Traveling Men.

The Traveling Men's Bryan and Sewall Club has hopes of getting Mr. Bryan to accept its invitation to speak here on Sept. 30.

Mr. A. C. Stanley of the committee that sent a pressing invitation to Mr. Bryan to be here on that date has received the following letter from him, dated at Lincoln, Neb., July 30.

"My dear Sir: Your letter inclosing resolutions to address the Traveling Men's Democratic Club on Sept. 30, received. Replying will say that the details of the campaign are in the hands of the Democratic National Committee, and they will have charge of arrangements of all meetings.

The club will press the National Committee to have Mr. Bryan come here on the date named.

"The Traveling Men's Club yesterday received this cordial invitation: 'The ladies of the Woman's Bryan-Sewall Club extend greeting to the members of the Traveling Men's Bryan Club and ladies, and cordially invite them to be present at their first meeting, which will be held Monday evening, Aug. 4, at Jefferson Club Hall, 302 Olive street.

"Prominent speakers will address the meeting."

MR. STEPHENS' REPORT.

The State Treasurer Files His Statement for July.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 1.—State Treasurer Stephens to-day filed with Gov. Stone his report of the transactions of the Treasury Department for the month ending July 31. The report shows that there was a balance in the Treasury in all funds on the first day of July of $1,346,678.57. Receipts during the month, $18,125.85; disbursements, $78,638.81, leaving a balance on hand at the close of business July 31 of $1,386,165.61. Earnings of penitentiary paid into the Treasury in July, $28,622.52; disbursements, $28,622.52.

CHOLERA SPREADS.

It Has Caused Eight Thousand Deaths in Egypt and Is Believed to Be a Deadly Contagion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 1.—Advises received at the Marine Hospital from Alexandria, Egypt, show that the cholera outbreak there has gone beyond control. The report, dated July 31, says: "During the week before last fresh outbreaks occurred in sixty-nine different places and last week in eighty-seven. During the seven days up to the 1st inst., 1,300 deaths were reported and in the following six days 1,700. So far 8,000 deaths have occurred from the present outbreak."

MISS FAIR'S ESCAPE.

In Diving the Heiress Was Stunned and Almost Drowned.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 1.—Miss Virginia Fair narrowly escaped drowning yesterday. She went in bathing at Bailey's Beach for the first time this season. Miss Fair swims well, thanks to the tuition of Mr. Brotherton, in-law, Hermann Oelrichs, who is as much at home in the water as on land. People who were watching her say that Miss Fair was about to dive from a raft. She stood on the edge and poised for the dive, when she slipped on the wet planks, lost her balance and fell. Her head struck the edge of the raft and for a moment she was stunned. She was taken to the villa of her sister, "Rose Clark," where Bancroft, the historian, lived. She soon recovered her spirits and was extremely grateful to the guard, whose presence of mind she appreciated. For Miss Fair herself saved a life last summer.

Miss Fair is the daughter of former Senator Fair. She is very rich, having inherited a large part of her father's immense fortune. She is a brunette of rounded figure. She dresses well, drives well, rides the bicycle well and is noted for vivacity and good humor.

JERSEY MOSQUITOS.

Justified Their Reputation by Biting a Cycle Club.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ARLINGTON, N. J., Aug. 1.—Mosquitoes routed thirty-five members of the bicycle club while the riders were on their way to take part in the wheelmen's carnival at Elizabeth. They started at 7 o'clock and had got to Newark when they were forced to give up. Several were almost blinded by the pests, and when the party returned their faces and hands were swollen to almost twice their natural size, and the eyes of several were partly closed. The wheelmen say that the mosquitoes came down upon them in thick clouds. The members had decorated their bicycles with flags and lanterns, and before the start expected to win one of the prizes offered by the club.

NEW YORK SOCIAL CLUBS.

Many of Them Organized to Dodge the Liquor Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The hundreds of so-called social clubs which have been incorporated with the Secretary of State since the Raffles liquor law has been in force will soon be exposed by an investigation conducted by the State Excise Department. These clubs are formed either to evade paying a liquor tax or to enable saloon-keepers to sell on Sunday. Some of the clubs, of course, are bona fide organizations. Seven-eighths of them, however, were established with the sole purpose of endeavoring to get around the provision of the law which prohibits Sunday selling by saloons.

State Excise Commissioner Lyman has had his inspectors looking into the operation of these clubs. They find that many of them are in rooms over a saloon, having the saloon-keeper as president of the club; the bartender for secretary, and the "look-out" as the third incorporator. These clubs were organized for the sole purpose of enabling the saloon-keeper to sell liquor on Sunday by removing a portion of his liquors from the saloon to the club room above on Saturday night.

AN EMIGRANT HORROR.

Men Shut Up in a Ship's Hold Until They Perished.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Attorneys for Messrs. Lerner and Levi Milrod of this city have written to the United States Consul Agent at St. Petersburg, Russia, asking him to notify H. Schmidt, owner of the steamer Herman, who lives at Flensburg, that suit will be brought to recover damages for the death of David Milrod and Joseph Lerner, the two sons of the firm named. It is alleged that young Lerner and Milrod, with four other emigrants from Russia, perished by suffocation in the hold of the Herman while she lay at Libau, in Russia. It is alleged that these six, and nine others who survived the ordeal, were placed in an unventilated compartment of the ship, where the water was up to their hips, in order that they might evade the Russian authorities and escape from the country without doing military service. They objected to entering the pit, and only yielded when assured that they would be kept there but a short time. They were, however, confined several hours, and all were unconscious when the pit was opened to let them out.

FLORIDA DEMOCRATS.

Free Silver Men Rebel and Will Hold Another Convention.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 1.—The all-Florida Democratic leaders have repudiated the regular Democratic electoral ticket, which is composed wholly of sound money Democrats. They will issue an address to the free silver Democrats, requesting them to send delegates to the convention, at which the future course of the faction will be determined upon. This action was taken by the Bryan and Sewall Central Silver Club of Florida, at a meeting held here, and the avowed purpose of the leaders is to put new State and electoral tickets in the field, composed entirely of silver men. The trouble has been brewing ever since the State convention in June, when a free silver plank was defeated by a tie vote, the silver men alleging that a silver delegate was induced by improper influences to violate his instructions. The financial question was then relegated to Chicago, the convention pledging the party to abide the action taken there. The sound money men then secured control of the State Executive Committee, but the four delegates were evenly divided between the sound money and silver forces. After the convention one of the free silver electors resigned, and the Executive Committee replaced him by a sound money man. Then the other silver elector withdrew, and in his stead the committee selected a sound money man, thus making the electoral ticket solid against free coinage.

This enraged the silverites, who claim the sound money Democrats are scheming to prevent the electoral vote of the State from going to Bryan. They have resolved to bolt, therefore, and name new State and electoral tickets.

BOOTH-TUCKER'S TALE.

Ballington Says It's a Case of Trifling With Truth.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Ballington Booth, Commander of the Volunteers and ex-Commander of the Salvation Army, said to-day:

"I have read in the San Francisco press of the 24th inst., the statement of Commander Booth-Tucker, and I am amazed that he can dare to continue thus flagrantly misrepresent the cause of the Volunteers. Such statements would be harmless in the East, only receiving ridicule where the facts are better understood. Booth-Tucker knows he misleads the public in stating we have only two posts in the Volunteers. We have 100 officers, organized, separate posts, and we are not afraid to leave the public to judge of their comparative strength, financially as well as numerically. He again wilfully seeks to damage the Volunteers by asserting we have 'many more foreign officers than American.' In our own headquarters and the New York Regiment alone we have 121 officers, of whom 94 are American born. Such statements as the above are either the result of the grossest ignorance or wilful intent to damage an American institution, and the charges that Indian missionaries have brought against Booth-Tucker of being a perverter of facts seem to be confirmed by his procedure on the coast. The Volunteer movement, though only five months old, progresses beyond all expectations. We are not talking of all we propose doing, but are rather quietly doing it. Many scores of the most prominent and respected citizens, among whom are 1,700 defenders, bear witness of the accuracy of Booth-Tucker's statement and to our phenomenal advances. Mrs. Ballington Booth visits California in October, and the public will then learn the truth from her lips. Fair-minded Americans will withhold judgment."

Money and Prices.

By Ricardo,
the Great Political Economist.

"The value of money in any country is determined by the amount existing. . . That commodities would rise or fall in price in proportion to the increase or diminution of money, I assume as a fact that is incontrovertible."

THE ELECTION IN ALABAMA.

SPLENDID PROSPECTS FOR MONDAY BY THE DEMOCRATS.

WHITE SUPREMACY STAKED.

Populists Rapidly Returning to the Democratic Party as the Republicans Are Muzzling the Negroes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 1.—On Monday next in all probability the Democrats of Alabama will win the most signal victory they have achieved in years. It will be the commencement of a process that will wind up in November with a solid south arrayed on the side of Bryan and Sewall. As far as Alabama is concerned it is free silver anyway one takes it. The Populists, fused with the Republicans and headed by Congressman A. T. Goodwyn, are opposed by the Democrats under the leadership of Capt. Joseph F. Johnston. The platforms of both parties do not differ on the money question. Both declare unequivocally for free silver at 16 to 1 without the consent of other nations.

The Republicans were content to run with the Populists on that basis, as the Populists would hear to nothing else. On the other hand, when the Republicans put out their presidential electors, the Populists were brisk in asserting their determination not to pledge themselves to their support. The Republican divide in the combination is two places on the State ticket, viz., the nominees for State Auditor and Attorney-General and co-operation in the counties and division of county offices. On neither side was there a pledge to support the presidential nominee of the other. There has been one principal issue in the campaign, viz., white supremacy. Silver was not the issue for the very simple reason that Johnston is as good a silver man as Goodwyn, in fact better than Goodwyn, because the former has no talent of mixture with gold standard Republicans. Goodwyn was at a disadvantage from the very start because silver, which had been the principal rallying cry of the Populist forces in Alabama, was taken from him by the nomination of a free silver Democrat. Routed from this issue he had to appeal to the country on the old and worn-out issue of free elections. Finding that that did not arouse much enthusiasm among the white people, who appeared to sympathize with either silver man to win, Goodwyn was compelled to trust his fortunes to the vote of the negro. Whether his vote in Congress for the negro (Murray) over the Confederate States of South Carolina, South Carolina, to do in connection with the State campaign or not, Mr. Goodwyn best knows, but it is certain that this action made him very popular among the negroes while at the same time it has lost him hundreds of thousands of votes among the white Populists, who, in North Alabama especially, where there are comparatively few negroes, have as little use for Samba as one could wish.

The Democrats have used the vote for the negro for all it is worth. It has been preached from every stump. Many prominent Populists, some of them candidates for office, have quit their party and come over for Johnson, giving as their reason that they did not care to remain in a party that was being swallowed up by the Republicans and menaced white supremacy. The return of Populists to the fold has been the principal feature of the campaign. The Alabama Populist has been out of the party only four years and has always contended that he was a Democrat of the true Jeffersonian type. Therefore, when the party in the Democratic race cast its back upon Congressman R. H. Clark, a pronounced gold standard and Cleveland Democrat, and placed at its head a Democrat of the John T. Morgan silver school, the Populists acknowledged that the party had moved itself in the harbor whence the ship had strayed and rather than be a party to negro domination they would vote for the silver man that bore the name of Democrat.

The best stroke of the race to end on Monday was in letting down the bars for the return of the prodigal sons. This was suggested by Senator Morgan and the State Democratic Committee took his advice. All the disgruntled Democrats who walked under the title of Populist were asked to come into the party primaries and help make the party nominations under promise to support the man they helped to put at the helm. That they came into the primary in considerable numbers there can be no doubt, and there is no doubt that, to an extent, Capt. Johnston owes his nomination, as he will owe his election, to the farmers who left the banner in '92 to follow R. F. Kell, their choice for Governor, who was wheeled out of the nomination by political juxta. These same farmers are going to support Bryan and Sewall in November.

The Populists have not yet put out electors and it is doubtful if they will. It is true that the fusion State Committee has menaced the Democrats with the threat that, unless fair elections are accorded on Monday next, they will support the primary in considerable numbers there can be no doubt, and there is no doubt that, to an extent, Capt. Johnston owes his nomination, as he will owe his election, to the farmers who left the banner in '92 to follow R. F. Kell, their choice for Governor, who was wheeled out of the nomination by political juxta. These same farmers are going to support Bryan and Sewall in November.

There seems but little doubt that the Legislature will be silver by a safe margin. In the selection of a Senator to succeed Mr. Fugh it is not improbable that the silver men of all parties will caucus, while the gold men of all parties will do the same. There seems no doubt that the

she would visit the Harlem river looks at Eastport to see the racing yachts.

"McGlynn drove her. Before she started she said she wanted him to drive, as she was afraid of the stable boys. She left the house about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the worst of it was that before she left she took her mother's purse. It contained about $200 in money and two of her diamonds, each of them worth at least $500. "Well, we expected her back by 7 o'clock, anyway, and when she didn't come at that time, we thought that she was delayed for some natural reason, and expected her any moment.

"We waited and waited and she did not come. At midnight I went out to look for her. I took my roadster and went over the roads which she would have taken, had she gone the way she said she was going.

"I found that she had driven straight on through Westchester County to the landing at Harlem and there I found the carriage. It had been put in a stable by McGlynn, who told the liverman that a man would call for it the next day. I suppose I was the man to call for it.

Gibson House as Mr. and Mrs. McGlynn and occupied the same room. That nearly broke my heart.

"But when I had got into Cincinnati had checked their baggage on into St. Louis and I came here, knowing that they would stop here for a few days anyway. She had relatives here on her mother's side of the family and they have been very indulgent with her and might forgive anything she would do. My nephew, Mr. Hendig, with whom I am stopping, declares that he had not seen my daughter nor McGlynn and I think he is telling the truth.

"But I am positive they came to St. Louis because at the Union Station I found a record in the baggage room where the trunk they only had one—had been received there on a Vandalla train and that it, under baggage check No. 22,119 had been taken out by an expressman and transferred to some house in the city."

There Mr. Meinert lost trace of the couple, and called on the police for assistance in finding his daughter.

The photograph of the girl he gave to Chief Harrigan he secured again to have published in the Post-Dispatch.

He bears no malice for his daughter, but he thinks that her youth is accountable for her folly.

silver majority can be used for a Democrat.

Cyclone Davis and Grand Master Workman J. R. Sovereign of the Knights of Labor are the only leaders of national fame who have come to Alabama to help out the Populists. On the other hand Govs. McLaughlin and Atkinson of Mississippi and Georgia respectively, lent their aid to the Democrats, while every Congressman and both the Senators gave their assistance. The sound money Democrats stood nobly to the cause in spite of defeat in the primary, and there has not been a break in the ranks.

The Populists claim that they will carry the State by 60,000 majority. They declare their sincerity in the assertion. The Democrats are more conservative. They put Johnston's majority at something like 30,000 to 40,000. The Populists base their claim on the negro vote, which they think the Republican fusionists will throw into line, while the Democrats place their hopes on the return of prodigals to the home of their fathers since a silverite has been put in charge. There is no man with money in his pocket who is going to bet that Johnston will not be the next Governor of Alabama.

The Alabama State campaign closed today with speeches in almost every town. Capt. Joe Johnston, silver Democratic nominee for Governor, spoke in Winston County, Congressman Goodwyn, Populist nominee in Limestone, Congressman Bankhead in Franklin and Gov. Oates in Henry. The campaign committees of both parties, whose headquarters are in this city, claim they will win on Monday. N. L. Miller, Secretary of the Democratic committee, says: "I feel certain that Capt. Johnston will carry the State by 60,000 majority and probably 60,000. The Democrats will also make a gain of at least six members of the Legislature and probably ten. Last time we had sixty-four out of 110 Representatives. I feel sure that we will have at least seventy in the next House, which will give us a Democratic majority." A friend of Capt. Johnston's quoted him this morning as saying: "I shall carry the State by about 60,000 and we shall make gains in the Legislature."

J. A. Bingham, acting Chairman of the Populist State committee, said today: "We shall carry Alabama for Goodwyn by from 5,000 to 6,000 majority. We will carry all the white counties with the possible exception of three and go to the black belt with majorities that will overcome any majorities that can be counted up by the Democrats. We will have the Legislature by an easy margin." Wm. Vaughan, State Chairman of the Populist Party, said: "The Populists will carry Alabama for Goodwyn by from 5,000 to 6,000 majority. We will carry all the white counties with the possible exception of three and go to the black belt with majorities that will overcome any majorities that can be counted up by the Democrats. We will have the Legislature by an easy margin."

CHAIRMAN JONES.

The Senator From Arkansas Did Not Tarry in St. Louis.

Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, didn't stop in St. Louis Saturday on his way to Washington. He has issued a call for a meeting of the National Committee, Aug. 11.

It will be held in New York, a day in advance of the notification ceremonies in Madison Square Garden. Candidates Bryan and Sewall will be formally notified of their nomination.

Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa, the Populist leader, who expected to meet Senator Jones today, left the city Friday night, and Senator Jones did not tarry in the city on his way East.

JUDGE WM. BALLENTINE.

One of Grant's "300" Will Vote for Bryan and Silver.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. BENTON, Mo., Aug. 1.—The people of Scott County are not doing much talking, but there is a strong sentiment here for silver that is growing every day. In the Sikeston there were a number of gold advocates, but they have declared their intention to hereafter support the silver cause. It is estimated that fully one-half of the Republican vote in this county will be cast for Bryan and Silver.

One of the most notable conversions to the silver cause is Judge Wm. Ballentine of Commerce, Mo. He is a Republican and voted in 1880 for Lincoln, and he was one of the famous Grant "300" at the Republican Convention of 1880. The Judge is one of the recognized leaders of the Republican Party in this county. In 1880 he issued his personal check for Scott County's Republican assessment.

ELECTION COMMISSIONERS.

The Arkansas State Board Selecting Them for Each County.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 1.—The State Board of Election Commissioners, consisting of the Governor, Attorney-General and Secretary of State, met today and began the arduous duties of selecting Election Commissioners for the various counties of the State. A list of names was presented for the appointment of two Democrats and two Republicans to each county board. Chairman Cooper of the Republican State Committee submitted a list for each county and left it with the board. The result will be announced Monday or Tuesday.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

The Cleveland Trouble May Take on a National Aspect.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 1.—It is probable that the Central Labor Union will order a big sympathetic strike throughout the city at its next meeting. The Executive Committee of the striking Brown holding men and labor leaders of several unions today met in conference and decided that a sympathetic strike was necessary. The committee appointed by the Central Labor Union to report on the advisability of a general strike in support of the Brown strikers, reported favorably. The number of unions affiliated with the Central Labor Union is 60, and the total membership numbers 2,000 in all branches. These men have voluntarily bound themselves to obtain the mandates of the Central Labor Union, and will only be local union members. The fight will not only be local, but national. Every union in the United States will be called on for support of the Brown strikers.

TRAMPS TAKE A TRAIN.

Seventy-Five of Them Dethed the Missouri Pacific at Topeka.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 1.—A crowd of seventy-five tramps climbed on the south-bound Missouri Pacific accommodation train about 7:30 o'clock this morning at the Missouri Pacific depot at Fifteenth and Monroe streets and resisted all efforts of the trainmen to put them off. They surrounded the engine, climbed into the cars and filled the train with noise. The engine men tried to pull out, but the tramps played and failed. The trainmen had been ordered to take a load of policemen to the depot, but the tramps had taken the train and started, having been detained two hours.

DELEGATES TO JEFF CITY.

ST. LOUIS PRIMARIES PASSED OFF QUIETLY.

VOTED FOR A CONGRESSMAN.

Democrats Unanimously Select Harrison I. Drummond to Represent the Eleventh District.

Though the Democratic primaries of yesterday afternoon involved the election of delegates to two important conventions, a light vote was polled, and there was no contest in any ward.

There were 9 delegations chosen to the State Convention, which meets at Jefferson City next Wednesday, and a like number to the Judicial Convention for the Eastern District, which meets at Uhrig's East August 15.

In addition to these, in all the wards composing the Eleventh Congressional District, the vote was a direct one for a candidate for Congress. The only name for Congress on the ticket in these wards was that of Harrison I. Drummond, the well-known tobacco manufacturer, who receives the nomination without practical opposition.

All of the tickets were headed "Regular Democratic Delegation."

AMERICAN FILIGRINE.

Fifty-Five of Them Have Arrived in Rome.

ROME, Aug. 1.—A party of 55 American pilgrims arrived here this afternoon in order to visit the Vatican and other points of interest. They will attend the Pope's mass to-morrow.

Time shortened between St. Louis, Kansas City, Lincoln and Omaha via the Missouri Pacific Railway.

SAD CASE OF MR. WHITNEY.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I can no longer repress the feeling of burning indignation which rises up within me when I observe the way in which my friend, Col. William C. Whitney, is being treated by the Republican party. Mr. Whitney himself tells us all about it in a column of hysterics (intermixed with shrieks and sobs) in the Associated Press dispatches.

It seems that all that Col. Whitney wanted the Republican party to do was to form with him and the gold Democrats a "Non-Partisan Union," to have its newspapers quit calling Democrats "Cranks" in such a breezy and all comprehensive way as to possibly include Col. Whitney and his followers, and to abandon its policy of Protection. Only this and nothing more.

Now it must be apparent to Col. Hanna that his newspapers are away off.
Col. Whitney is not only nice, but positively sore on every point that touches his financial wisdom, and the term "Crank," which the rest of us accept as a declaration of honor considering the source, hits him where he lives. It should, therefore, be avoided. Besides it is not a correct use of the term. The word "crank" simply means "All who do not agree with Col. Whitney." To apply it to the Colonel himself is, therefore, to compel language to become felo de se.

The proper way for the Republican newspapers to behave is to begin with the statement that the Eastern Democrats and their coadjutors elsewhere are the Salt of the Earth, the Saviors of the Country, the Light of the World, and ascending by degrees wind up with the broad assertion that Christ knew less about the Scheme of Salvation than they do about the Currency Question. Then everything would be lovely and the goose hang altitudinal.

As for the protection plank, of course Mr. Hanna should abandon that.
He may say it is the keystone of the Republican arch, but what of that? Everybody knows that the Eastern Democrats come high. We gave them our spinal column, vertebrae and clavicles, and even then we could not keep them in line. I was in favor of giving them the rest of the Democratic anatomy, including the liver, lights and gizzard, but some fellows who secretly desired the defeat of the party objected, and now we are irretrievably ruined. What Col. Hanna wants to do is to keep them in line. What he has to give them is totally immaterial. Otherwise I warn him of the ruin that will be his. Col.
Whitney will simply propose a "non-partisan union" with the Prohibition-ists on the basis that they abandon opposition to the alcoholic liquor trade, and the Republican party will be laid away in lavender alongside the Democratic party. A dog must be found somewhere for that tail to waggle on the Standard Oil Co. will have to erect a very large political orphan asylum.

The Republican party has some very respectable members—I've heard, I would have been a Republican myself but for the fear of a future state. Mr.
Hanna is a nice old gentleman, too, and then hardly deserves the fate of having to wrestle with the Eastern Democrats problem at this stage of the thermometer. And this would not have happened if we had kept the Eastern Democrats in line, as it was our duty to do. I am afraid we have been as thoughtless as the girl in camp meeting who said, in relating her sacrifices for religion's sake, that she "felt that her hoop skirts were dragging her down to hell, and so she gave them to her sister."

Mr. Whitney says he cannot support McKinley, because he is for protection; nor Bryan, because he is for free silver, and if he sets up the third party gold ticket he says he will divide the gold vote and surely elect Bryan. But let not the haughty and overbearing Mr. Hanna assume, therefore, to treat Mr. Whitney as if he were Gen. Weyler and Mr. Whitney a poor American newspaper correspondent. There is yet another way. "My brethren," said the colored preacher, "dere ax but two roads. One am de broad and narrow road which leads to sure destruction and de oder am de narrow and broad road which leads to everlasting dominion. Which will you take?" "Dem de oder road!" inquired an excited brother on de back seat? "Yes, sah,"
"Den," shouted he, "dis nigra takes de woods."

The Columbian Order (previously called Tammany) has unfurled the Democratic flag. The regular New York State organization is about to do the same.
Mr. Whitney says, "Free silver has a much stronger following in some portions of the East closely allied to the large commercial centers than is generally supposed." The free silver enthusiasm has obtained a hold upon Republicans throughout the West and farming communities of the East quite as strong as upon Democrats." This means in homely language that the prairies are afire with free silver in New York State, and Mr. Whitney is a Casabianca on the burning deck, whose sole leather is just beginning to burn. The Democratic gold fly will not walk into the parlor of the protection spider, and Mr. Hanna, speaks up bold and free and says that Mr. Whitney & Co. may go to the devil if they do not care to vote for protection. At the same time, a free silver Republican can vote for Bryan without doing violence to his tariff convictions because the Democratic platform pledges the party to no legislation on that subject until after next general election. Hence this loud roounding cry which fills the crannies of the Union and sounds like the expiring half-human shriek of a wounded horse on a battlefield. And no wonder, Mr. Whitney hollers! It is an Armenian outrage!

And why should not Mr. Whitney follow the example of our colored brother?
The path to Europe is still free and there where the gaudy of irreverent newspaper criticism stings, he may hobnob with kings and queens, sip mint juleps, wear at the Anarchists, Democrats and Populists and allow the cool ocean breezes to reinvigorate him in his own opinion that he is a statesman. He would not be the first to save his political life by taking to the woods.

But Mr. Whitney declares that the vote for a third party gold ticket will defeat McKinley and elect Bryan and that he will erect that ticket and cast vote although the election of Bryan means "lawlessness and disorder, national dishonor, common dishonesty, the overthrow of the courts and the destruction of all those things which lie at the seat of national life," rather than vote for protection.

It is right here that Mr. Whitney shrinks from a Brobdignagian responsibility to a peanut actuality. It is right here that his assumed cloak of statesmanship is seen to sit loose around him like a giant's robe upon a dwarfish thief.
It is right here that he is touched by Luther's spear and his native dross revealed. If he and the other gold Democrats are seeking public ends, they would vote for a tariff mountain high before they would cast a vote which by his own declaration tends to bring about "lawlessness and disorder, national dishonor, common dishonesty, the overthrow of the courts, and the destruction of all those things which lie at the seat of the national life." If they believe this, every gold man who does not vote for McKinley is a second-rate.

But if they seek private ends, an unduly appreciated gold dollar, an unearned increment of wealth produced by an unfair manipulation of the currency, then it is perfectly natural that the leaders should support a gold third party ticket, and induce their followers to deliver a half stroke at the Democratic party where they cannot persuade them to plant a body blow. To borrow an aphorism from the interview of Mr. Whitney, who says that at Chicago "the Democratic mask was effectually removed from the face of Populism," I might say that this suicidal scored removes the mask of public purpose from the face of private greed. It marks the half-way house by which the most of his deluded followers will return to the Democratic fold. It is the declaration of insolvency of the political Moses, and the petition in bankruptcy of the rank and file. And the third party sound money ticket is a bridge of gold to a wily enemy.
If our deserting brothers already fear an indirect vote for Bryan less than a vote for protection it shows that the bugaboo set up to terrify them are losing their power. And they will realize that in the platform of 1896 the Democratic party has returned to the course upon which Washington and Jefferson launched the Republic to the dimly-remembered accents of its mother tongue.

OFFERED $10,000.

Capt. Murphy of the Laurada Gets a Letter From Consul Gonzaga.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—Capt. Murphy of the Laurada has received the following letter from the Spanish Consul:

"Your exca. Consular de Espana En Philadelphia: Ten thousand dollars will be paid by the undersigned at his office in Philadelphia for information leading to the capture within Cuban waters of any military or naval expedition, or of any vessel engaged in carrying men and munitions to the islands of Cuba, certain inhabitants of which are now in insurrection against the government of Spain. This offer carries with it a promise of immunity from arrest or apprehension to any person or persons who shall give such information as is mentioned above, whether or not such person or persons are participants in such expeditions."
JOSE GONZAGA.

Consul for Spain.
Capt. Murphy said: "Only in the most humble spirit do I say that it is an attempt to bribe me. I wish to assure him that I am not in the business of surrendering secrets which I do not possess, and I say to him frankly that if it were ten times $10,000 he could not induce me to turn in-former. I do not feel indignation by the offer of the Spanish Consul, but I do believe that a man serving in his honorable capacity ought to have a higher appreciation of the patriotism of an American citizen than to attempt to purchase him for cash. Evidently he is only following out the instructions of his Government, and I am trying to carry out the orders of my employers."

Capt. Murphy handed the letter to Capt.
W. W. Keen, Consul for the U. S. at Hartford, Conn. Capt. Keen said: "It is an infamous act, and an insult to the military citizenship. It is a usurpation of authority on his part to declare that those who violate the neutrality laws of the United States will receive immunity if they surrender information, even though they be not participants in the expedition. That is a dangerous declaration for a man to make just now. Can thousands of dollars be secured by the offer of a bribe? The Spanish

WE'VE CATCHED IT AGAIN TO-DAY.

DR. FRANKENFELD SAYS HE THINKS IT WILL BE HOT.

YESTERDAY WAS NOT SO BAD.

It Was Hot While the Sun Was Up, but Cooled Off Nicely Toward Evening.

After starting out in an unobtrusive way as if anxious to shrink down into the bulk of the thermometer, the mercury took a sudden shoot upward yesterday and soon was playing around the mark it hit on Thursday, the hottest day of the year.

Most persons refuse to have a thermometer about the house this warm weather. It isn't nearly so warm when you don't know exactly how warm it is from the thermometer. Those who are able to watch the mercury hovering around the 100 mark, however, without feeling any warmer than if they had never seen a thermometer, noticed when they arose yesterday morning that it was just 76 degrees above zero. It was 7 o'clock and it was a pretty good start. There was no reason to believe that the mercury was going to forget its modesty and sail skyward. Even Weather Czar Frankfeldt thought the quicksilver was going to behave itself. The storm of Friday afternoon had measurably cooled the atmosphere and Dr. Frankfeldt had hopes that another one would be along during the day.

But it was a false hope. Before 9 o'clock the wind had veered to the southwest, which Dr. Frankfeldt says never brings a storm, and the mercury began to climb with the agility of a Japanese acrobat.

From 71 deg. the temperature reached 81 in two hours and at 12 o'clock it was 93 deg. in the dome of the Custom House. Dr. Frankfeldt said at the time that the mercury would stick there, but it didn't. Down on the street 1 o'clock it was 86 deg. and by 4 o'clock 86 deg. in the shade was the register.

The mercury let it go at that until 5 o'clock when the wind got around to the west and the heat cooled things off a little.

After the sun had set the temperature once more became bearable and St. Louis sank to sleep last night with some prospect of a comfortable and restful day to-day. But the last thing Dr. Frankfeldt said last night before closing up his shop was that it was going to be a pretty hot day to-day as it was yesterday.

Dr. Frankfeldt calls these little breathing spells that interrupt the torridity "lull savers." The cessation in the heat Friday and Saturday was just a lull in the storm. One more day of the heat that had endured since Wednesday would have been accompanied with an appalling list of fatalities. Sleepless nights had left everyone exhausted and ill-prepared to resist the sun's onslaught. With no chance to cool off each day brought sweating humanity nearer to complete exhaustion.

Relief came just in time. The sudden drop in the temperature Friday evening, even though followed by a renewal of heat yesterday afternoon caused a decided falling off in the number of deaths. The physicians at the City Hospital and dispensary were enabled to treat a number of the victims of the hot sun. Dr. Frankfeldt states that a continuation of the hot sun will be a matter of irregular intervals and of comparative short duration. It will be mostly in the afternoon, during all of August.

In the East, where the weather is cool, weather prevailed. There was high pressure in the East and low pressure in the territory around St. Louis. The high pressure, however, was too distant to bring cool winds to the city. There was low pressure in the Northwest, with the low area moving toward St. Louis, which Dr. Frankfeldt says will be a relief. As soon as the low pressure disappears, Dr. Frankfeldt says, the heat will be taken by that from the Northwest.

What St. Louis wants now is a little pressure.

THOSE WHO SUCCUMBED.

List of Victims of the Heat Cared for at the Hospital.

As a result of the slightly cooler weather which prevailed yesterday there was a decided diminution in the number of heat prostration cases.

Only eight new cases were reported at the City Hospital and the corps of physicians and nurses were given a brief breathing spell.

The death rate showed a pleasing falling off, only one patient at the City Hospital died. He was James L. C. He was overcome by the heat at his home at Dover and Water streets Friday night, and was taken to the hospital and tried to be doing well. Yesterday afternoon his wife and daughter called at the hospital and talked to him. He was bright and cheerful and it was thought he could be discharged to-day. His wife and daughter had been gone but a few minutes when a change for the worse was observed. He sank rapidly and in half an hour he was dead.

Joe Lalar, 25 years old, laborer, widower, living at 209 South Levee, was found yesterday afternoon at Broadway and Clark streets, where he was prostrated by the heat. He was sent to the City Hospital. Not serious.

Pat Gallagher, laborer, 39 years old, living at 422 Polkman avenue, was overcome yesterday afternoon. He was revived at the dispensary and sent to the City Hospital. His case is not serious.

An unknown man, aged about 35 years, was picked up on the street in front of 1221 O'Fallon street at 2 p. m. yesterday. He was unconscious when he reached the City Hospital. His condition is serious and he may die.

John Donohoe, laborer, 23 years old, was overcome by the heat yesterday evening, at 6:30 o'clock. He lives at Eighth and Market streets. He was also suffering from alcoholism. His condition is serious.

John Washington, colored, while at work at Second and Pine streets yesterday morning, succumbed and fell to the sidewalk. He was taken to the City Hospital, where he was revived and sent to the hospital. He lives on Fourth and Market streets.

Leonard Kleinlein, a baker at the St. James Hotel, fell on the sidewalk at Tenth and Market streets. A policeman called an ambulance and took him to the dispensary. Dr. Lippe found the man not only in a precarious condition from heat exhaustion, but also suffering from cramps. For a time it looked as if Kleinlein would die on the stretcher, but he was finally brought around, and sent to the hospital.

He is married and lives with his family at 144 Clinton street.

A well-dressed young woman fell to the pavement at the northeast corner of Fifth and Olive streets, overcome by the heat, at 10:30 o'clock. She was carried into Alexander's drug store, where she was soon revived. She refused to reveal her name.

Victor Klutner, 25 years old, was found dead in his bed at his home, at 944 Chouteau avenue, early Saturday morning. It is supposed that the excessive heat caused the death.

Thomas Coleman, 444 Kennerly avenue, was overcome by heat while beating carpets at 222 Easton avenue yesterday morning. John Donahue, a laborer, was overcome by the heat in front of the Ivy House, at 11 North Sixth street, while stopping at 5 o'clock yesterday evening.

stires to know his whereabouts. Louis, who was sunstruck five years ago, left his home at 2041 Chouteau avenue July 27 and has not been seen since.

Henry J. Rudden, 54 years old, was overcome by the heat in front of his store, 4207 Race Course avenue, yesterday afternoon. He was attended by Dr. Butler. His condition is not serious.

John W. Voss, 40 years old, married and living at 124 Hebert street, was overcome by the heat yesterday afternoon. Voss is a driver for H. Grose & Co., soda water manufacturers. He entered a saloon at 480 North Broadway and was endeavoring to amuse the spectators when he suddenly fell prostrated by the heat. He was taken to the North Side Dispensary, where he was revived and sent home. Not serious.

William Wallace was overcome by heat in front of 408 South Main street at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was taken to the City Hospital, where it was said his condition was not serious.

CANDIDATE WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN RECEIVING THE NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS.

While his competitor in the Presidential race is unwilling to talk for publication, it is the custom of Bryan every evening to send for the newspaper men. To them he talks freely, giving them whatever news there may be of interest to the general public.

From the New York Herald.

Carless Mr. Malojawansky.

Hyman Malojawansky was arrested at 10 o'clock last night for careless driving.

At 10:45 o'clock he drove over Abe Blumenthal, a 12-year-old boy, who was playing on Wash street between Eighth and Ninth. Malojawansky drives a milk wagon and was going so fast he could not stop in time to avoid running over the boy. Young Blumenthal lives at 214 Wash street. He was badly bruised on the head and shoulder and received a painful scalp wound.

This was the first time Malojawansky has been arrested since he was arrested at 10 o'clock last night for careless driving.

Additional confirmation was given the story Saturday night by an employee of the Missouri Pacific. This gentleman said that Mr. Schuyler, the Assistant General Auditor, who practically runs the entire office, recently went to the chief clerk of each department and instructed him to go to each employee under him; to ask his ideas on the money question, and how he intended to vote at the election.

As the employees were catechized they answered variously. Some said they would vote for McKinley because they favored a single gold standard.

Many who gave these answers are either Democrats or known to be free silver.

They answered as they did because they knew that the corporations were prompted by superior officers. Their long experience with the Missouri Pacific taught them that these questions were written out in New York and sent to St. Louis by Gould and Russell.

In making the rounds each Chief of Division carried a small book. The name, address and party of every man were taken. Those who said they were for McKinley were marked "O. K." while the others were marked "doubtful."

Some of the employees when approached by the chief with the little book, replied that their political opinions and views on the money question were personal matters. In no way connected with their duties as employees of the Missouri Pacific.

How they intended to vote was also entirely personal.

Thus the corporations are beginning their work with a view to the election. The thumb screws early, and in a fashion doubtless satisfactory to Wall street and Hanna.

JUST ONE FRECKLE.

The New Silver Certificate is a Beauty, but It Is Not Absolutely Flawless.

The first installment of the new $1 silver certificate was received by Sub-Treasurer Small Saturday.

Eight thousand of them came in one batch, yet the demand is so great that by noon Monday Mr. Small expects to exhaust the entire supply.

All he can't be able to get a new batch for some time.

The new silver certificate is a beauty with a freckle on its face. It is the last thing the gratified owner of a bird's-eye view of Washington City on one side.

History, reclining with the stars and stripes wound gracefully about her, is pointing out the beauties of the National Capital to "Youth," who stands by her side.

In the foreground looms grand, slender and symmetrical the Washington monument, rising like a giant from the base of the Capitol to "Youth," who stands by her side.

The broad Potomac is shown with ocean waves dotting its surface.

A glimpse of the White House is given from the rear almost, the last thing from the asphalt on beautiful Pennsylvania avenue.

On the extreme right of the note is a miniature fac simile of the Constitution of the United States of America.

It leans against what would be the Virginia side of the Potomac half way between historic Arlington and Mount Vernon, where rest the bones of Washington.

As the owner of the new silver certificate reads down the first page of the Constitution he notes with amazement and horror that the National Government had mis-spelled the word tranquility.

Grover Cleveland or one of his gold millions has deliberately knocked an L out of the Constitution.

"The otherwise perfect note has this freckle on its face."

Perhaps Mr. Cleveland did not want to let the perfect silver certificate; perhaps he reasoned that he had knocked so much L out of the country in the last four years no one would kick on knocking an "L" out of the Constitution.

It is missing at any rate.

WONDERFUL CHICAGO POLICE.

They Arrest Two St. Louisans and Then Have to Release Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 1.—The Chicago police announced with great gusto this afternoon that they had captured two notorious St. Louis burglars after almost a week's work. It developed later that they got hold of the wrong people, and the captives were released.

Detectives McQuilly and Levy, after watching Morris Mann and Isaac Burger, both of St. Louis, for almost a week, took the two men into custody this afternoon on a charge of robbing a St. Louis jewelry store of $200 worth of goods.

Three thousand dollars worth of jewelry was found on Mann. It consisted of diamond rings, diamond pins, gold watches set with diamonds and other articles of jewelry.

After the men were taken up to the police station they satisfied the police that they were traders and were released. The St. Louis police were notified of the arrest and immediately a satisfactory answer was received.

The men were allowed to go. They said they were former partners in a cigar and billiard parlor in St. Louis, but did not know the men a week ago and at that time thieves who were wanted in St. Louis. How the mistake arose is not quite clear.

Det. McQuilly says he knows nothing whatever about it.

I was soon encouraged, however, when after taking three bottles I was able to move my right arm. I continued to take the medicine and before long was able to walk across the room, and when I had finished one dozen bottles was able to get about as of old.

"I have been hale and hearty now for two years, without any sign of a return of the disease. I will never cease to praise S.S.S., which I regard as the most wonderful blood remedy on earth; it brought me out of a condition of utter helplessness to one of robust health, with a weight of 170 pounds."

S. S. S. cures Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, and any form of blood troubles. It is guaranteed purely vegetable and forces out the poison permanently. If you have a blood disease, take a blood medicine—S. S. S. is exclusively for the blood and is recommended for nothing else. It has made some truly wonderful cures of Cancer, where death seemed the only relief, and we will take pleasure in seeing to anyone full particulars of these cures, and also our valuable books. ## GO CROWD AND A FAST TRACK

GAVE TONE TO THE RUNNING AT THE FAIR GROUNDS.

FORSEEN TOOK THE FIRST.

Fred Foster and Buckleware Won From Good Fields in the Second and Third.

The talent had a hard battle with the bookmakers at the Fair Grounds track yesterday afternoon. The card was a fairly good one, but hard to pick and the running somewhat erratic.

In the first race it was hard to tell who was the favorite and the betting was shifty and uncertain. A good bundle of money finally settled on Forseen, who won the race by a length from Charlie McDonald.

The next event, a six furlong scramble, was taken by the old reliable long shot, Fred Foster, who won by a nose from Albert S., a half way favorite. Picaron, a good thing, ran third ahead of Swiftly, who, however, kept the game going for awhile up the back stretch.

The third race, a five furlong race, was a battle between Swiftly and a half favorite, Johnnie McFadden. Swiftly won by a length from Johnnie McFadden, who was a half favorite. The fourth race, a five furlong race, was a battle between Swiftly and a half favorite, Johnnie McFadden. Swiftly won by a length from Johnnie McFadden, who was a half favorite.

ONE WAS LOST, THE OTHER, WON.

BROWNS AND SPIDERS BROKE EVEN.

FIRST TOOK ELEVEN INNINGS.

Donahue Pitched Well, but Was Beaten—Breitenstein Was Invincible—Base Ball News.

Yesterday's double header between the Browns and Spiders resulted in a tie, the first of the season. The Browns won the first game, but it took Tebeau's veteran warriors eleven hard innings to down plucky, headed Frank Donahue. These eleven innings produced some of the most exciting baseball playing on both sides as any could wish to see. The score was 5 to 2.

Breitenstein pitched and won the second game, with the help of his fellows. Good hard hitting and fine fielding by the other team helped him to his victory. The Browns were beaten by a score of 5 to 2.

A few words in the stand yelled for Billy Hart. This made Breitenstein angry. He pulled his hat tight and heaved a ball at the crowd. He was not alone in this. Several other players did

Successful Specialist
GIVES HIS VIEWS OF THE CAUSE AND TREATMENT OF THE SICK
 There are very few men who have not suffered from some of the ailments which are the result of a disordered system.

Many have been permanently cured, many apparently cured and others have received but a temporary stay of their disease, and at regular intervals they are annoyed with the distressing symptoms, if not the disease itself with all its attacks, pain anguish and mental distresses.

Very few diseases attack a man alone, they invariably complicated or intermingled with each other, and on this account are very difficult to cure. Take a physician worthy of the care of your

from some medical college; it does not assist stick man if his physician should thoroughly derstand all the ancient and modern languages
No; he must be a man who is endowed by na-with powers far greater than is possible to ob-through a course in Chemistry or Medicine some college; he must possess an innate genius immediately grasp the exact condition of a system; he must also possess a thorough knowledge of Medicine; he must be a man who has an unlimited and varied experience in the treatment of all diseases covering periods of years

The Situation in the Principal Cereals
—Continued Dullness in Flour—
Cotton Advances—Notes.

That the country believes higher prices will be seen is evidenced by the contracts with which they are holding onto their old freight from the West, and the decidedly higher prices for the highest market in the West. The highest bid is for white corn, receipts at St. Louis last week, at 10c. The highest bid for accumulation in the stock, however, as only a few shippers would buy at the advanced rates. The total in stock is now $8,500,000, of which 2,000,000 bushels are in the hands of 2 white. Yesterday's sales in elevator were 100,000 bushels, 14c for No. 4, and on track at $1.00 for No. 4, 2 white.

WHERE EVIL DOERS AWAIT THE HOUR OF PUNISHMENT.

A Motley Assemblage of Thieves, Drunks,
"Good Men" and Unfortunates.

The Keeper of the Holdover and the Guests
He Entertains.

Night Rendered Hideous by Their Cries and Blas-phemies—Types of the "Regulars"
Who Lodge There.

The Four Courts holdover is a place which few persons would care to visit except on a matter of business or out of curiosity. As a steady place of abode its close cages and grantif floor would soon become exceedingly irksome, even to the most indifferent. The experienced criminal would greatly which all manner of criminals and suspects are thrown when first arrested. It is located in the basement of the Four Courts Building, in the eastern end, and is capable of accommodating more than 300 persons. The last time it was full was during the Republican Convention in June, when everybody who happened to look cross-eyed was arrested. Sometimes the number of prisoners on ment can gain admission to the holdover, and that is by a written order. Such an order can be issued only by the chief of police, the chief of the Central Police District, the sergeant in charge during his absence, or, in rare cases, Mr. Eddy, chief of the Central Police District. If the order should accept an order from anybody else he would lay himself liable to discharge.

Even then comparatively few persons are admitted to the holdover. The ones most familiar with its interior are lawyers and newspaper reporters. Two cages have been arranged, one on each side of the entrance, with square openings in the solid iron wall, and prisoners are usually interviewed in this manner by their relatives and friends, the latter standing on the outside and talking through the opening to the unfortunate within, who is firmly locked in the cage, which is just big enough for him to turn around in twice.

Two hours before that time the driver of the Black Maria, which is kept at the Fifth District Station, on Market street, near Ewing avenue, starts on his morning round to gather up the erring from the different stations. All of the State prisoners are taken to the Four Courts and all petty offenders, except those who come within the jurisdiction of the Second District Police Court at Broadway and Biddle street.

When they reach the Four Courts they are turned over to the Sergeant in charge of the Central Station, and he receives for them, just as a man might expect for that $10 you owed him so long and paid at last. They are then placed in charge of the hold-over turnkey, who classifies them according to the crimes with which they are charged or of which they are suspected, and places them in cells accordingly, after having entered their names in a record book used only for that purpose. While this sifting process is going on the shouting of feet, talking and the locking and unlocking of doors usually awakens the other prisoners, and then it is farewell to sleep. They are usually in an ugly mood at that hour, and set up a series of demoniac yells singing in chorus or blaspheming in loud voices, and altogether it is a busy and noisy scene as one might care to witness. In the afternoon the Black Maria puts in an appearance to remove convicted Police Court prisoners to the Workhouse. Others for whom warrants have been issued during the morning are transferred to the city jail. Others are released by order of the court, and a deep quiet settles down on the holdover, to be broken only by the night rush, which usually begins about 8 o'clock. Such is the daily routine of the turnkey's life of almost constant activity and watchfulness, but there are many things to relieve the monotony.

Occasionally a woman attempts to hang herself with her stocking, or a man tests the rubbly with his shirt or a suspender. None of these attempts have proved successful, for the watchful turnkey always discovers the rash ones and yanks them back to life.

He hears more tales of woe than anybody except the Sphinx-like heads of the department or a policeman walking a beat. There are always at least one prisoner who "didn't do a thing" and who can imagine no reason for his arrest except the malevolence of the police, who delight to prey on innocent people.

Particularly is this true of women. The number of inmates and unfortunates of males who find their way into the holdover is surprising to hear them tell it. It is a matter of court record, however, that very few unwarranted arrests are made in the course of a year.

As a usual thing the women arrested are notorious offenders or young ones caught in bad company. Any girl of tender years or respectable appearance is given the advantage of better associations and taken direct to the prison-parlors of Police Station Harris.

Occasionally a hard working woman, who was never arrested before, will become intoxicated and raise a disturbance, but she usually makes the best of the matter, knowing herself guilty of no deeper wrong.

Mr. Sherlock Holmes, or some other person interested in such matters, might be benefited by a study of the inscriptions left by criminals, young and old, on the walls of the hold-over cells, which they have occupied at different times.

"Home, Sweet Home" is the touching inscription left by some sentimental case, who had been there before.

"I got 30 minutes to get over the bridge," wrote Mr. Matt Sullivan. "Was dam glad to get it."

"Justice is slow," wrote a downcast individual who had been up against it before.

"A 50 fine for holding up a Sheny for a shirt with a Winchester. Gone to the Ref for 3 years. Good-bye, Jesse McClure, 13 years old."

"The Ref" is a common abbreviation for the House of Refuge.

Willie Burrell, according to the account he gave, stole a loaf of bread and got 1 and a half years in the Ref. "Matt Crighton," wrote an admiring friend, "is a first class dip."

"A dip" in police parlance is a pickpocket. "The Frisco Kid" is a philosopher. With great care and precision he printed the following in his cell:

"The life of a thief for ten years I have reached the conclusion that honesty is the best policy. I am now a free man. Love and be honest. The best thing a thief gets is the worst of it."

"JAMES E. HOWARD," wrote the "Frisco Kid."

JOYS AND SORROWS OF MIDSUMMER.

WINTER MAY BE COLD AND BLEAK, BUT SUMMER ROSES
HAVE THEIR THORNS.

Now are upon us the full joys of mid-summer, of which poets sing at space rates whenever life opportunity offers as gladly as they sing of spring, and autumn, and winter, and Easter, and Thanksgiving, and Christmas. The poet is out for the stuff just the same as prosaic people. A proverb manufacturer who had doubtless had an unpleasant experience, gave it captivity, cucumber tastes the adult members of the family, while the baby wrestles with cholera infantum. It is not necessary to purchase material and employ workmen to weatherboard and weather-strip the house at this time of the year. Instead of that the money is spent in putting in wire screens to drive and wind-does to exclude the pestiferous fly.

Now is the happy time when the amateur fisherman goes to the brook for trout and forgets all about the cares of business. He comes back pitted with mosquito bites like a victim of smallpox, with the skin of his neck peeling off, his system full of malaria and double work to do to make up for lost time.

Now is the season when the enraptured fly drops into your soup and your milk at the restaurant. You tell the colored waiter that you prefer the fly served separately and he tells you he will get a fresh bowl of soup or glass of milk. Then he goes behind a screen and dexterously fishes out the offending fly with his forefinger. You do not see him do this and you feel that you have asserted yourself to some purpose.

REALISM AT A CAMP MEETING.

A SACRIFICIAL LAMB SLAIN ON THE ALTAR BY A MODERN NEGRO MOSES.

No people could be more devout than the negroes, and no camp meeting could maintain more interest than is excited by them. They do not like "make believe" as well as they do the real thing, and because of that the "Feast of the Passover," recently celebrated near Dunbar, Pa., has some unusual features.

A living lamb was slaughtered, and its blood was drunk. Then the lamb was skinned, after which the bones were burned. It was a weird proceeding, and during its progress the hundreds of spectators maintained an oppressive silence.

For several weeks a camp meeting has been in progress at Graham's Grove, near Pittsburg. It has been largely attended by white people, as well as negroes. The services were conducted by negro ministers, and the whites were there in the guise of spectators, who were well repaid by watching the ceremonies of the ministers and converts.

The feast of the Passover was widely advertised and about two thousand people were present, more than one-half of whom were negroes intent on a proper observation of the occasion. They surrounded the rude altar and pulpit which had been erected in the woods and forced the white spectators to remain at a goodly distance.

Rev. R. E. Brown opened the services. He explained what the special services were to be, and what they were intended to commemorate. During his talk the stifled bleating of a lamb was heard at intervals. The lamb, which was intended as a sacrifice, was tied to a tree a short distance from the pulpit.

In front of the pulpit was the altar, a out some centuries ago that every rose had its thorn, or words to that effect. Most roses have several, and midsummer, which produces several, is not without its drawbacks. No joy is unalloyed.

There is no coal to buy, except for cooking purposes. Sweet dishes, the plumbers' bill is replaced by the ice dealer, and the coal bill gives way to the charges for running electric lights.

The father of young America is not afraid that his boy will be brought home with a broken leg from falling on the frozen pond, or with a broken head from a coasting collision. But then at this season the boy may not be brought home at all. He is likely to go down to the river to swim and to pick up somewhere near the Gulf of Mexico.

It is delightful to sit out on the rustic bench in the front yard, or to take a stroll in the moonlight, enjoying the cool breezes after the heat of the day. That is, these things would be delightful, but that every window is hung open, and whether one sits in the yard or walks abroad, there is no escape from the strains of "The Sidewalks of New York," or "The Sunshine of Paradise Alley," which comes from every cracked and badly painted piano.

Colds, sore throat, scarlet fever and shooting affairs, and river excursions. And as summer amusement caterers understand their business, all these resorts are stocked with ice cream, and lemonade, and frapped drinks, hard and soft, and the young man rough table. After the minister had spoken for some time, prayer was offered, and then preparations were made for the important ceremony. During the remarks and prayer the excitement among the women had become somewhat noticeable, and when the lamb was brought to the altar it was alarming.

The air was rent with cries and moans, which intermingled in a confused jumble of sounds in which the words were not distinguishable. An the altar, the cries and moans increased in number and fury, until it seemed as if Bedlam might loose.

Some of the worshippers, unable to restrain themselves, arose to their feet and shrieked dismayfully, wringing their hands. Others on the outskirts of the crowd, where they had more room, rushed hither and yon, and to accept salvation while there was yet time. They cried and shouted in a frenzy, each moment becoming more and more excited and violent.

Rev. Mr. Brown impersonated Moses, and another minister represented Aaron. They were dressed in what they regarded as the proper costume. Other ministers were garbed to represent other biblical characters.

The cries and lamentations of the crowd of excited men and women were brought from the tree. Its legs were securely tied and it was then set on the altar. Behind the altar stood Mr. Brown with a sharp knife. With one blow he cut the throat of the lamb. As the blood poured from the gash it was caught in a bucket held under the edge of the altar.

Into this bucket a pitcher was dipped, and with this the worshippers drank. It was touched to the lips of those officiating in the ceremony. Then it was passed around, and eagerly drunk by the frenzied throng. They crowded and pushed, and the bucket was passed back and forth. When it was to be held up, it was passed back and forth. Soon the bucket was empty of its contents, and still the people had not enough.

Then the lamb was roasted and eaten. It did not furnish more than a morsel to those who were anxious to obtain a piece of the flesh of the sacrifice. The bones were burned afterward.

After the ceremony there was a general washing of feet in the evening. Small amounts were used, and the hundreds of devotees washed each other's feet. Several barrels of water were used for this purpose. It was nearly all of the people participated.

CONFEDERATE BILLS.
In Demand by Shoppers Who Pass Them on the Ignorant.

There are 50 Confederate bills circulating in New York. A Mount Kisco farmer accepted one, and the wife of a workman accepted another. Neither the farmer nor the workman was familiar with the appearance of a bill of Confederate currency, and they are not familiar with the fact that these bills are paid of for genuine on transactions, and the demand for them has been increasing.

These reproductions are crude, and they are not imitations of the original bills. They are not legal tender, and they are not to be used in any transaction. They are a curious product of the imagination of the people who have accepted them.

Hot Weather and Epidemics.
Hot seasons, including the hot, muggy and rainy seasons, have witnessed the worst epidemics. In both tropical and temperate countries are found between April and September. Yellow fever requires a temperature of 70 or 72 degrees Fahrenheit before it can be developed and propagated. Heat aids the pollution of both air and water, keeps the germs in a dormant state, and favors the spread of contagion.

Diphtheria is not so rife when the atmosphere is allowed to circulate a little through the house, and the happy fact is not called on to incur doctor's bills for these disorders. But he does not escape. The great danger is in the deadly work on the small boy, and the allures, but of and blasphemous exclamations, interspersed with ribald songs and other demonstrations of vulgarity which are presently shocking to those not accustomed to such sound and sight. The women join in and there is absolutely no way of stopping them. All the devilry of human nature seems to assert itself at such times and the noise reminds one of a mad-house in which a hundred raving maniacs have broken loose.

Finally day commences to dawn and through the iron lattice work of the cells peep across of hungry eyes, bleared with dissipation and desperate enough for almost any deed of evil. The singing and shouting cease, save for an occasional outburst from a drunken man or woman, and the turnkey stops to breathe a minute and thank himself that the worst is over for the day.

At 6 o'clock he is relieved by another turnkey, and he at once begins preparations for feeding the prisoners. A big wagon loaded with pound loaves of bread baked at the Poor House drives up about that time and is soon followed by another from the St. Louis Dressed Beef and Provision Co., filled with bologna sausage.

These two articles constitute the hold-over bill of fare, and they are served with untold hand. Nobody is allowed to go hungry if bread and sausage can satisfy his appetite, but still, they are very unsatisfactory and even nauseating to a man, he ever so humble, who has been "out" the night before, and who longs for "the click of the ice in the pitcher as the bottle comes up the hall."

However, the Police Department is not supposed to take into consideration the unnatural condition, and when it serves more bread and sausage at 3 o'clock in the afternoon it thinks it has done its duty by those in its charge.

The department does not propose to tempt people to break into the holdover by giving it a reputation as a banquet hall. There is but one bright thought in connection with the food question, and that is your meals from the outside.

This generally does, particularly if you are colored. A negro who has a martyr's tune to be arrested is regarded as a martyr to the law, no matter what the charge, and his friends vie with each other to see who can send him in the most tempting dishes, tobacco. There is only one drawback to the prisoner's delight. Intoxicants are strictly barred.

About 9 o'clock each morning, except Sunday, the City Marshal, or one of his deputies, comes to demand the Police Court prisoners. They are taken from their cells and lined up, and the roll is called. Then they are delivered to the Marshal, who receipts for them.

Formally over, the door is unbarred, and they are marched between two long lines of policemen and deputy marshals to the Police Court prisoners' cage at the other side of the long corridor.

While this proceeding is going on the members of the detective force, police agents and others begin to enter to view the murderers and "good" men, such as pickpockets, thieves, burglars and confidence men, who are to be familiarized themselves with their features.

The "good ones" are lined up in the southern corridor, and the "bad ones" are lined up in the northern corridor. The police agents are closely as a man might inspect a fruit of clothing, and he was about to give up a month's salary.

This is even better than studying the pictures in the rotunda gallery, for here they have the living subjects; and it is a poor detective who will not recognize a man after having seen him in the holdover the day before.

The hour between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning is perhaps the busiest of the whole day. The big square corridor just inside of the entrance is filled almost to overflowing. While the criminals and suspects are being examined by the "fly cops," policemen commence to drop in to inquire about cases in which they are interested. The space between the desks is filled with newspaper reporters and artists interviewing and sketching the important criminals of the

WOMAN'S REALM

THE SUMMER GIRL IN HARNESS.

A LATE IDEA WHICH IS VERY FETCHING ON GIRLS WITH TRIM FIGURES.

It is surprising how many ways the young woman possessing a pretty, graceful and trim figure can hit upon for showing off her form to the largest advantage. Most of the fashions are originated by ingenious women with some specially beautiful feature which she wishes to display to the best advantage, or some equally ingenious one whose beauty or grace is marred by some defect which she is anxious to conceal.

at the waist with a buckle of gold, with blue and white enamel. Two straps extending to the bust line were connected with the belt in front by two small straps, which came suspended from the middle of the belt at the back, where they were attached by a tiny white button. Two more buckles marked the meeting place of the straps in front, by which the suspender could be adjusted at will.

With such a harness there is no need for the heaviest skirt to drap or ornament. The buckles themselves make the prettiest ornaments imaginable for gowns of the description worn by the young lady referred to, but the harness must not be worn with a very thin gown or with a shirt waist. The color as well as the style of the harness must vary to suit the gown and taste of the wearer. Although the white kid is very popular, it is not exclusively used for the harness, for there are all of the delicately shaded shades to be chosen from beside the daintier shades of green, grey and blue, which would accord with some materials better than the white, while others would doubtless choose the conventional tan and black as the only proper colors for the harness.

There is much scope for the inventiveness of the summer girl in the buckles and order them to be made to suit her fancy, as they are of gold or silver and generally ordered from the jeweler. A young lady who is getting ready to go on a yachting expedition has ordered her buckles to represent the colors of the yacht-club, her costume being of white duck and her harness of white kid, with gold and blue enamel buckles bearing a bright color miniature of the club pennant. The harness is rather an expensive fad and only girls with pretty figures will wear them, for they would look badly upon any other kind.

The Laugh of a Woman.

A woman has no natural grace more bewitching than a sweet laugh. It is like the sound of flowers, water. It leaps from her heart in a clear, sparkling rill, and the heart that hears it feels as if bathed in the cool, exhilarating spring. Have you ever pursued an unseen fugitive through the trees, led on by her fairy laugh? Now here, now there—now lost, now found? Some of us have; and are still pursuing that wandering voice to make come to us, in the midst of care or sorrow, or irksome business; and then we turn away, and listen, and hear it ringing through the room like

NEWEST PADS IN GARTERS.

ODD DEVICES IN BUCKLES AND BUTTONS WHICH THE SUMMER GIRL AFFECTS.

Of the many new fads in garter buckles, each of which is striving for pre-eminence in the summer girl's fancy, the army button is probably the newest and most coveted. The fashion was set by a young New York girl, whose flange was at West Point, and of whom, absent, she could remind herself in no more happy fashion than by utilizing army buttons to supply every possible need of her gowns, wraps and headgear. Finally the original author who supplied the buttons devised a new use for them, and promptly presented his betrothed with an exquisite pair of garters. The elastic was covered with true blue shirred silk, and the ever-faithful brass buttons that were as buckles were sunk in a tiny rose of creamy lace. But the most delightful part of this arrangement was that, on pressing a spring, the button flew up and disclosed a miniature of the soldier garter. The fancy has proved so taking that every girl who can now boast of one of these treasures feels that for the time her last wish is gratified.

There are other ways, however, of carrying one's sweetheart's picture in one's garter buckle, even if the army button must be dispensed with. A favorite design is the gold or silver heart, with round miniature set in the center and perhaps surrounded by gems. Still newer is the bejeweled affair that opens with a concealed spring of which only the wearer knows the secret. The engaged girl has adopted this idea with great fervor, and even the girl who is not engaged usually cherishes a secret longing for one of the pretty trinkets. It really does not make much difference whose picture one may carry among the silk and lace and jewels of one's garter, so long as it is of a Delft pattern. This, also, is mounted in gold. The girl with strong college sympathies—that is to say, the girl who thinks her summer has not been spent in vain if she secures an invitation to a Yale "prom" or a Harvard class-day—is satisfied with nothing less than the garter buckle that bears a miniature representation of a college emblem. These have usually a severely plain, oblong background of gold, silver or enamel, upon which is mounted a dainty pennant of blue, crimson or yellow and black, that for a few weeks, at least, means everything to the fickle wearer.

Hardly so romantic with sentiment, but quite as artistic, are the flower garter buckles which the progressive jeweler are now exhibiting with pride. Sometimes these are in the form of white enameled daisies with a bit of clear yellow tinsel for the center, the whole surrounded by lace and used on a garter of pure white silk. Another is like an exquisitely shaped wild rose with a diamond center sparkling like dew. Or there may be a rich purple violet with its heart of pearl.

Women whose consciences forbid them to wear the article that is supposed to be second only to the corset in its power to work destruction cling to the suspender buckles, or else is held in place by more elaborately decorative jewelry than could possibly be attached to the suspender. The two ends that fasten to the suspender itself are attached by means of the fully as elaborate as those ever seen on round garters. The stocking is caught to the two ends of the elastic by handsome hooks, or else is held in place by means of a gold or silver button and loop. The suspender is fastened to the corset by small gold or silver safety pins.

At the summer resorts the suspender garter is decidedly inferior in popularity to the round variety, and it is asserted that no young bather considers her costume complete unless it exhibits below the left knee, one of the very smartest garters that the season's fashions can produce.

MIRRORS IN GLOVES.

This Is a Novelty That Promises to Become Dear to the Feminine Heart.

A mirror in the palm of the glove is the latest novelty. With its assistance its own hand is enabled to be sure that her hair is on straight and also that her curls are in perfect order. She can also ascertain if her bow is at the most becoming angle at the proper time.

All these and a hundred others, important from the feminine point of view, she can find out on the street without attracting the attention of passers-by, with the aid of this simple contrivance.

The inventor of this little device has so arranged the looking glass in the palm of the glove as not to interfere with the shutting of the hand. He has likewise taken the precaution of putting it in the left-hand glove, so that when its owner shakes hands with a friend it will not be observed.

It is not the fair sex alone that will find this ingenious contrivance useful. Men are quite as vain as women, so the latter claim and will be seen by any observer to look at themselves in every mirror they pass on the streets.

Household Hints.

If the refrigerator is too small to hold a watermelon which you wish to keep cool, roll the melon in wet cloths and place it in the sun. The process of evaporation will cool the melon. Wet the cloth on the outside as it becomes dry.

It is said that if a lamp-wick is soaked in vinegar twenty-four hours before being placed in the lamp a clearer flame will be insured. Wicks should be changed often, as they soon become clogged and do not permit the free passage of oil.

If ink must be spilled on tablecloths or any white goods, do it in the tomato season, for the acid juices of this fruit vegetable promptly remove all such stains from cloth, as well as from the hands.

If obliged to have the hands in strong soapy water in washing dishes or doing other household duties, a little vinegar rubbed on them when taken from the water will improve them as well as help to keep the skin white.

The superiority of onion juice over the chopped onion so often used in seasoning is manifest to all who have tried the former.

HOW ST. LOUIS WOMEN DRESS.

AS WELL GOWNED AS ANY WOMEN IN THE COUNTRY—SEEN IN THE SHOWS.

I don't believe there are better gowned women to be found in any city of the United States, or even in the French capital, than are seen right in the City of St. Louis. While making a round of the fashionable shops during the past warm days I noticed more particularly than usual the gowns worn by the early morning shoppers, and having recently been in New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore and other Eastern cities, where I saw many women out on the same errand, I could but compare the women of the different cities in my own mind, and I gave the palm to St. Louis.

Women are beginning to get frightened for fear they will lose the comfortable shirt-waist in drawing to a close, because the autumn dresses being almost light fitting, the only concession being the puff or epaulet set at the shoulder.

Ready some of the summer gowns are made with small sleeves, one of lace which grows narrower as they approach the wrist, ending at the wrist in a deep point, with "drapery" or "ruffles" which fall over the shoulder. Ruffles will be used on the sleeves this fall, and the scanty drapery by the time they feel they cannot give up the big sleeves all at once. But the moult is not complete yet, and the ruffles will be one of the most popular styles.

It is useless for ladies to fight against the decrease in the size of the sleeve, for it is a law of fashion. The sleeves will come the narrowing of the skirt, and I was shown a model for a new fall gown by a St. Louis lady, in which the flare directly in the front width of the skirt was left out, the fullness being drawn to the back from the sides, a style which will show the outline of the figure to greater advantage and prove more becoming to nine women out of ten. The sleeves for this gown were like the old-fashioned coat sleeves, with an epaulet at the top. I was told that the skirts would be trimmed with more and more lace, and the ruffles about the edge, which is so much more becoming to the feet, will be in favor again.

The "Directory" cravat of lace and mull will be worn with the fall gowns, and the favorite jacket will be the "Empire" style. The favorite cloth to be used for fall jackets will be the smooth surfaced material, heliotrope, hunter's green, garnet, Maarsin, dull red, olive and steel being the favorite shades.

These jackets will be made both double and single breasted, and velvet will be the favorite trimming. The fancy collars and capes which are already so much used will grow in favor for fall use, until the cold weather begins in earnest. These collars and capes are made of ribbon, lace, such as lace and even artificial flowers and are exceedingly becoming to the face. They are generally made of black and white or cream color, but occasionally to match the gown. The collars used for cold weather will be made of velvet, lace and ribbon, and will be trimmed with ostrich feathers.

The most popular materials for the first fall frocks this season are loosely woven Scotch homespun, light-weight chevrons and tweeds. The crumpled crepon has retired from public favor and the French chine alpaca designs of blurred flowers under a half of tiny silk bird's eye dots, light amaranth and green are the popular fabrics. For the bride who is getting ready to be married next fall, white mousseline will be the material used for the wedding gown.

EQUALITY OF THE SEXES.

THE EMANCIPATION OF WOMAN WAS THE PRODUCT OF OUR WESTERN CIVILIZATION.

At the annual Catholic summer school at Madison, Wis., last week, Frank P. Walsh, formerly of St. Louis, read an interesting paper on "Woman in the Law," of which the following is a synopsis:

This is the age of emancipated women. What long was held the dream of visionaries—the equality of the sexes—is fast becoming a realization. The bright glory of the nineteenth century's setting sun invests with equal benedictions of social and legal freedom the two creatures turned equal from the original hand of God. It should take a fine ear in these days to detect any sounds of Women sobbing out of sight. Because into made laws. Woman already enjoys almost every benefit which the law bestows upon man and some immunities which the law denies him. In every field of human endeavor her influence is felt. Her power is no longer limited in its employment to the singing of ditties to lord or lover, or the crooning of lullabies to sleepy babes, we now hear strengthened with the quality of authority in council, glowing with enthusiasm in the pulpit, charged with the magnanimity of eloquence in the forum.

The arts, knowing the sunning of her hand, the sciences no longer hold mysteries sacred from her contemplation. She is doctor of laws, she is doctor of physics, she is master of arts, she is bachelor of arts. Whatever man may do, she does not blanch at trying.

The English system embodied many rough and homely principles relative to women. Under the common law doctrine, it was a right of the husband to chastise his rebellious wife—a doctrine which has ramifications in the lower strata of British society to-day. This doctrine, according to Blackstone, recognized the right in the husband to inflict chastisement upon his better half in the same moderation that a man is allowed to correct his apprentices or children. In other words, to give them an occasional application of the rod whenever he deemed it necessary. And Blackstone naively adds, "With us in the police courts, Charles II. the power began to be doubted, and the wife may now have security of the peace against her husband. Yet the lower rank of the people, who were always fond of the old common law, still claim and exert their ancient privilege."

Perhaps if the learned Blackstone had made a thorough personal acquaintance with the situation, he might have found that at least half—the gentler half—of the "lower rank of people" were not particularly fond of this portion of his common law.

The history of Roman jurisprudence, in its relation to this question, presents a curious analogy to our own, in fact it is the spirit of the Roman law, in its advanced stages, as embodied in what is known as the civil law, that has operated as a leaven in the broad and liberal recognition of the separate rights of women accorded to them with us, the independence which women acquired in the latter days of its history, was the culmination of a progressive movement which had begun from principles entirely unfavorable to her.

But this rough and tough nature of John Bull is much in evidence throughout the English law, and it is with a slow and grudging spirit that he has unclenched his neck and relaxed the rigor of his monopoly on freedom to admit Mrs. Bull to a share in its blessings.

In criminal matters there were some sharp distinctions drawn. Husband and wife, in the language of the law, were called baron and feme, or lord and lady. Now, if the baron killed his feme, it was considered no more heinous an offense than if he had killed a stranger; but, if on the other hand, the feme killed her baron to the crime of murder was added that of treason, by a curious fiction of the law which held that such an offense was not only murder, but a breach of her allegiance to her superior lord. So, in this event, the feme had to suffer the penalties of treason, which were, till the statute 31, George III., c. 45, to be drawn and burned alive.

With regard to her civil rights she fared no better. Let us consider some of the disabilities under which she suffered, as illustrated by one of the commentators of Blackstone, Mr. Christian.

"Intestate personal property was equally divided between males and females; but a son, though younger than all his sisters, is heir to the whole of real property."

It may carry a hint to some of our American readers that there was an international agreement, when it came to this question of righting the wrongs of women. What are familiarly known as the "Married Women's Acts" were first passed in this land of the free, and afterwards enacted upon the laws of Great Britain. They were the product of Western and not Eastern civilization. It was the young and chivalrous giant of the West—having the strength of a giant and scornful to use a giant's tyranny—loving freedom and despising the spirit that would deprive any human being of its blessings—that looked in the face of the old world and said: "You have not dealt fairly by woman; I will be her champion."

When we come to consider woman's status in the criminal law, her privileges are no more and her obligations no less than those of men. If she violates a criminal statute she must answer the consequence in the same manner as the man.

In certain offenses, however, against the laws of society, such as theft and burglary, when committed in the presence of or by the command of her husband, a presumption of her innocence arises, upon the old common law theory, that she acted under the coercion of her husband. In indulging this presumption the law seems to draw a line between such heinous crimes as murder and manslaughter and the lighter offenses before enumerated, and the courts have almost uniformly held that, at the most, coercion is merely a presumption and may be rebutted by evidence to the contrary.

But now, as in times past, there is an innate disposition in courts and juries to deal tenderly with women, not only as a criminal, but as a litigant in the civil courts.

The story of Phryne, the Grecian beauty, is a classical case in point. When she was prosecuted on a capital charge at Athens her advocate, Hyperides, knowing that she was the most beautiful of women, and the original of the Venus of Praxiteles, took care to place her in full view of the judges and even to arrange the details of her dress to best advantage, so that her beauty was a mute advocate to her cause. He then addressed the judges with impassioned eloquence and secured her triumphant acquittal. So wrote the public prosecutor, and we are told, of what he conceived to be a miscarriage of justice, that he vowed he would never prosecute another, and the judges, evidently realizing the potentiality of beauty, made an order that thereafter no accused person should be present in court at the time of the decision.

How often has the example of Hyperides been inspiration to a weakling in modern advocacy! Feminine beauty is still as potent as in the days of the witty Greek, and the fair defendant who is found guilty of a breach of the criminal law must indeed be barren of defense.

Under our recent jury system, it may be safely said that, other things being equal, close questions where the parties are litigant are of opposite sexes, are almost invariably decided in favor of the woman.

What is to be the outcome of the so-called emancipation of woman? Is it for good, or for evil this growing tendency to separate the interests of the sexes? Does there not lurk something at the bottom of it all that is not in harmony with nature? Will the high sphere to which her enthusiasm directs her a possibility to be attained, or is it only a mirage that is luring her on to her own destruction? Will it bring about an interdependence between man and woman that will elevate and ennoble the home, the true basis of a nation's greatness? Or will drag woman from her lofty pedestal as the recognized social power of the world?

We seem to be following too closely the lines along which Rome tottered to her fall, not to find in our conditions some misgivings of the future, and sometimes I seem to hear the sounding of a solemn warning that the tendency of our laws to depart from the old ideas of unity in the marriage relation, and to lend a "property of easiness" to divorce is freighted with consequences that may prove the ruin of our social fabric.

Two saving graces Mr. Walsh recognized, however, as throwing a more hopeful light on the future of woman. One is the influence of the church and the other the innate purity and goodness of the female character. Together he believed they would save her from a repetition of Roman history.

SINS OF THE TOILET.

The Lecturer Induced Her Hearers to Renounce Corsets on the Spot.

Frederick Payer, a Swiss, who has recently obtained her degree as Doctor of Medicine, is lecturing her fellow countrywomen on the unsanitary enormities of modern female fashion.

Recently when the Society of Swiss Schoolmistresses was holding its yearly session in Aarau, Dr. Payer was invited to deliver a lecture on the subject of "Sins of the Toilet," and delivered a militant oration against the wearing of corsets, against gloves and against long skirts.

Her reasoning was so effective that at the end of her lecture no fewer than 100 women came forward and subscribed their names to a pledge to renounce the corset, to wear gloves only upon ceremonial occasions, and to have their dresses made a foot short of the ground!

never wear the harness, as it would only serve to emphasize her defects, but for the slender, round-waisted, trim girl it is wonderfully becoming. Unlike the belt, girdle and neck band, all of which may be found to fit any figure at any first-class dry goods store, the harness must ever be made to order, its first requisite being to fit perfectly. White kid or leather are favorite materials for this new fangled device, and the prettiest harness seen this season was noted for the beauty and perfection of her figure.

Her gown was made of foulard silk, with alternate stripes of white and pale yellow, the bodice close fitting and worn with a harness of white leather, two parallel bands of the leather about an inch in width encircling the waist, each band being fastened a silver bell, with power to scare away the ill spirits of the mind. How much we owe to that sweet laugh! It turns the bow of our life into poetry; it flings showers of sunshine over the darkest wood in which we are traveling; it touches with light even our sleep, which is no more the image of death, but gemmed with dreams that are the shadows of immortality.

UNPLEASANT CAPRICES OF ROYALTY.
INTRODUCTION OF PRINTING
AS A SUBSIDIARY AID IN THE PROGRESS OF EMANCIPATION.

Henry VI. left no royal record worth remembering save the establishment of Eton and King's Colleges. Edward IV., who began his reign in 1461, was bold and active. Queen Margaret's army of 60,000 men which attacked him was defeated and half her forces slaughtered, no quarter being given.

His title was now confirmed, and Margaret fled to Scotland. Three years later she attempted to secure the throne through the aid of Louis XI., but failed. Henry, who had been in concealment, was now confined in the Tower, as shown in the accompanying engraving.

Edward's marriage was not satisfactory, and, as he bestowed all the offices on his wife's relatives, Warwick resented him and espoused the cause of Queen Margaret.

He had no trouble in raising an army and compelling Edward to flee. Henry was taken from the Tower and crowned, his rights having been recognized by Parliament. Warwick and his son-in-law, the Duke of Clarence, brother to Edward IV., were made regents, therefore, in 1471. Before the year was out, however, the tables were again turned, and Henry found himself once more in his old quarters in the Tower.

Warwick was soon defeated and slain, and on the same day Margaret and her son Edward landed in England. She and Edward were defeated, and taken prisoners. Gloucester, brother of Edward IV., Margaret was placed in the Tower, and a there, it is presumed at the hands of Gloucester, who was so socially an unpleasant man to meet after dark.

Margaret died in France in 1542, and the Lancastrians gave up all hope. Edward, feeling again secure, at the instigation of his younger brother Richard, Duke of Gloucester, caused Clarence, the other brother, to be put to death and then began to give his entire attention to vice, never allowing his reign to get into his rum or interfere with it.

He was a very handsome man, but died in 1483, of what the historians call a disemper. Some say he died of heart failure while sleeping off an attack of coma. Anyway, he turned up his comatose, as it might say, and passed on from a spirituous life to spiritual one, such as it may be, leaving a counterfeited sovereign.

In 1474 the first book was printed in England, and more attention was then paid to spelling. William Caxton printed this book—a work on chess. The form of the types came from Germany, and was used till James I. introduced the Roman type. James I. took a great interest in plain and ornamental printing, and while trying to pick a calling card out of the jaws of a crude job press in the early years of his reign, contributed a royal thumb to this restless emblem of progress and civilization. (See illustration.)

The War of the Roses having destroyed the nobility, times greatly improved, and industry was declared constitutional. Richard IV., 12 years of age became king, and his uncle Dick, Duke of Gloucester, became Protector. As such he was disgraced, for he protected nobody but himself. The young King and his brother, the Duke of York, were placed in the Tower, and their uncle, Lord Hastings, and several other offensive partisans, on the charge of treason, were executed in 1483. He then made arrangements that he should be urged to accept the throne, and with a coy and reluctant grace peculiar to this gifted assassin, he caused himself to be proclaimed Richard III.

Richard then caused the young prince to be smothered in their beds, in what is now called the Bloody Tower. The Duke of Buckingham was at first loaded with honors in return for his gory assistance; but even he became disgusted with the wicked usurper, and headed a Welsh rebellion. He was not successful, and, in 1485, he received a slight testimonial from the King, as portended by the gifted artist. The surprise and sorrow shown on the face of the Duke, together with his thrift and economy in keeping his cigar from being scattered, and his determination that, although he might be put out, the cigar should not be prove him to have been a man of great force of character for a Duke.

Richard now espoused his niece, daughter of Edward IV., and in order to make the home nest perfectly free from social erosion, he caused the change of their views in a land where pea-soup fog can never enter. Anne was the widow of Edward, whom Richard slew at Tewkesbury.

Every one felt that Richard was a disgrace to the country, and Henry, Earl of many years in that town as a horse-trough. Shakespeare and the historians give an unpleasant impression regarding Richard's personality, but this was done in the interests of the Tudors, perhaps. He was highly

HENRY VI. IMPRESSED IN THE TOWER.

Intelligent and if he had given less attention to usurpation, would have been more popular.

Under the administrations of the houses of Lancaster and York serfdom was abolished, as the slaves who were armed during the War of the Roses would not submit again to slavery after they had fought for their country.

Agriculture suffered, and some of the poor had to subsist upon acorns and wild roots. During those days Whittington was third Lord Mayor of London, though at first only a poor boy. Even in the land of lineage this poor lad, with a cat and no other means of subsistence, won his way to fame and fortune, and the clergy. They acted as a check upon the clergy. They acted as a check upon the clergy. They acted as a check upon the clergy.

The manufacture of wool encouraged the growing of sheep, and, in 1465, silk began to attract attention.

During his reign Richard had known what it was to feed money, and the rich merchants and pawnbrokers were familiar with his countenance when he came after office hours to negotiate a small loan.

Science spent a great deal of surplus to experiment on alchemy and the Philosopher's Stone, as well as the Elixir of Life attracted much attention; but, as neither of these commodities are now on the

The drama began to bud, and the chief roles were taken by the clergy. They acted as a check upon the clergy. They acted as a check upon the clergy. They acted as a check upon the clergy.

Afterwards followed what were called moral plays, in which the bad man always suffered intensely in a small salary.

The feudal castles disappeared, and new and more airy architecture succeeded them. A better class of furniture also followed, but it was very thinly scattered through

BUTTER HAD "RIZ."

"About the meanest storekeeper I ever traded with," began Farmer Jones, meditatively, "was an old chap named Abe Davis, out at again-ry Corner. Abe is dead and gone to his reward, so 't won't do any harm to tell the story."

"One day when I was settlin' up my monthly bill with him, I ran across the following terms of which I had no account: 'Sept. 15—Credit by 25 lbs butter at 20c. 35c 00' 'Sept. 15—Debit to 25 lbs butter at 20c. 50c 00' 'When I asked for an explanation, he said: 'Didn't I ask you the first of September to put any butter to spare, and you reckoned so and you'd bring in a twenty-five-pound crock of it the next time you come?'

"'Maybe I did,' said I. 'I knew your word was good for twenty-five pounds of butter, so I give you credit for it on that date. The next time you came in, Sept. 15, I asked you how about that butter and you said the cows were dry, and so on and then milk you guessed you'd have to keep the butter for your own use, so I charged it back to you on that date to square up the transaction.'

"'I see you did,' says I, 'but there is a mistake in it, anyhow. You've put the price 20 cents on the debit side and only 20 cents on the credit side.'

"'That's all right,' says he; 'the price of butter has risen between Sept. 1 and 15. It may seem like quite a jump, but I always buy my butter at wholesale rates and when I sell it of course I've got to have the retail price.'

"I paid him his bill without sayin' anything more, but that was the last money he ever got out of me. I didn't mind takin' the butter back, seein' I had never parted with it, but there was most too much difference between Abe's wholesale and retail prices to suit me, so I hunted up another store to do my tradin' with after that."

THE STYLE WAS THERE.

Twyn: I wouldn't call Stanzer a poet. He has no literary style about him. Triplet: No literary style? Why, his fringed trouser legs are in the height of the literary style.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

"I saw it all," in the richly appointed parlor of the Plankwater residence a young man paced rapidly to and fro. His face was pale and his eyes were fixed upon the floor. He was thinking of the great conflict that raged within. Pausing at length in front of the divan where leaned with half-indifferent pose the form of a strikingly pretty girl, he continued:

"Yes, I saw it all. Listen, Mabel Plankwater, I loved you. When for the first time I looked into your eyes, full, it seemed to me, of the frank intensity of a young girl's nature. I felt that I could trust you. And so I gave you all the best love that was in my heart, and during the long weeks that I have called upon you, your love each day took on added growth, a new development. And you? How did you respond to my attention? By all those signs which a woman knows so well to convey you taught me to believe that your heart had found an answering echo in my heart, and now I find that the girl I have loved has deceived me. Yes; for there is no other word. I regret to say that I can fittingly use. Let me explain. You may wonder why I did not come last night. I did, but you did not know it. At 8:30 I mounted the steps of this house. I was about to ring, when through the half-open curtain I saw you in the front room with another man. I saw him kiss you, and then, overcome with the sudden shock, turned and left the house. Do you dare deny that what I saw is so?"

"Certainly not," nonchalantly replied his companion, lifting the lid from her bonbon box. "But you mustn't blame me. It was your own fault."

"My own fault," repeated the other. "Why was it my own fault?"

"Simply because," replied the fair young creature, "you promised to be here at 8 o'clock. You don't suppose I could wait any longer, do you?"

LEFT IN DARKNESS.

"Do you really and truly love me?" he inquired. "Yes, yes," she cooed, as she snuggled into his arms. "You are the light of my life. Just then her father appeared. There was a scuffle and her light was put out."

A HOPELESS MUDDLE.

"But," said he, continuing the argument, "why should you women have a vote? What do you know of the questions of the day?"

"If I mistake not, our knowledge of the questions of the day is not at all inferior to that of the men, sir," she replied testily. "Indeed," said he, "I doubt if you can name one of the issues of the day—even one."

"Is not the Venezuelan question one?" "Um—well—we'll call it one."

She gave a triumphant little smile. "We will call it one," said he; "but what do you know of the Venezuelan question?"

"Know of it? Don't I know that it was due to—that contemptible Dr. Jameson's riding across the boundary, and—"

He laughed an ironical laugh. "Where did you ever read that?" said he. "Why, in the Amazon's Era," she answered hotly.

"Humph! I was under the impression that Dr. Jameson was connected with some South African affair, but of course the men don't know," said he, sarcastically. "No, you men think no one ever reads a paper but yourselves. How could it have been in Africa when Gen. Weyler took him prisoner?"

"Indeed! I—I had an idea that Gen. Weyler was connected with the affairs in Cuba," said he again sarcastically. She gave a hysterical little laugh.

"Oh, you dear, stupid old man, and where is Cuba but in Venezuela?" said she with an air of triumph. "He made no trifle," things were now so hopelessly mixed that he left the scene in disgust and hastened to find relaxation in a long midday snooze."

TOO LITERAL.

"Mother," said the old farmer who for years had saved up his cash, as he gazed sadly on the ashes before him, "I said we'd have money to burn. I didn't mean for you to take it so darn ill-rally. I said, 'as usual, he had hidden his roll of bills in the stove and she had kindled a fire therein the first cool day.'"

A FAILURE.

"Oh, Gordon, dear," said Mrs. Young-wife, when her husband came home the other evening. "You can't guess what your little wife has been doing while you were downtown to-day."

"No, nearest. I'm not good at guessing, anyhow."

"Then you'd never guess this. Well, dearie, while you have been working away in that poky old office for me I have been right here at home working for you, instead of wasting my time at the matinee or running around making foolish calls."

"Intend to be a help-mate to me? I've made this one beautifully. I'm a born seamstress, anyhow, and I don't intend to stop until I've made you a whole dozen."

"A dozen what, my dear?"

"Well, then, a dozen beautiful hand-made shirts! Now, here is the one I've already made. Look at that stitching, sir. There's none like it in any of your other shirts. Dinner is going to be a little late to-day, and I'm glad of it, for I want you to try on this shirt right away. I ripped up one of your old shirts and made this one just like it. Do run into your bedroom and try it on."

Gordon did so, and came forth a moment later minus coat and vest and the shirt on in the way the Chinese have of wearing a similar garment.

"How ridiculous you look," said his wife, blushing prettily. "But never mind; let's see how the shirt fits. How does it feel?"

"Well, the collar band is about three inches too short."

"Oh, so it is. How could I have made such a mistake? It wouldn't do to put in a little loop of string, would it?"

"Let me see the sleeves. Why, one of them comes away below your finger-tips and the other reaches hardly to your wrist. That's strange! I don't see how I made that mistake. Why wouldn't it do for me to run a tack in the long sleeve? It would never be seen!"

"Well, I could set in a piece, or you could let your cuff down with a bit of cord, couldn't you? How is it for length?"

"Well, it's about four inches longer in front than it is behind."

"Why, so it is. Can't I remedy that in some way?"

"You might put a little ruffle on the front, or—"

"Now, Gordon, you're making fun of me. Think I'm a real mean of you. What are you laughing about now?"

"I really beg your pardon, my dear. I know that it is only a mistake, but don't you see that you have put the bosom in wrong side out?"

"No, surely not. So I have! Now, that's strange. But, then, I can change that."

"Now, Gordon, it is really horrid of you to make fun of me like that. I shall cry pretty soon. Hold up your arms. It seems rather full, don't it?"

"Oh, no, it really isn't full enough. There's plenty of room for another man in it."

"Gordon! Now I shall cry!" And cry she did. And when Gordon had kissed and comforted her and called himself an unfeeling old brute and begged her pardon over and over again, he said:

"Now, dearest, I'll tell you what you do. You just run around to all the matinees and afternoon concerts and other afternoon and morning affairs that you want to. Go it while you can, sweetheart, and when I need shirts I'll have them made by some one whose business it is to know how to do such work."

And they went down to dinner with their arms around each other, regardless of Mrs. Youngwife's failure as a manufacturer of shirts.

proved him to have been a man of great force of character for a Duke.

Richard now espoused his niece, daughter of Edward IV., and in order to make the home nest perfectly free from social enemies, he caused his consort
